There is absolutely nowhere good to eat near Madison Square Garden...until now!

From the owners of the Italian menswear shop, Lugo in Nolita, comes Lugo Caffe. This lively new restaurant captures, in their own words, the convivial charm of Italian café culture and the relaxed glamour of Fellini's Rome in the 1950s. The food is simple and straightforward, but quite good and the atmosphere is airy and refreshing. For those of you who were disappointed with Morandi, Lugo Caffe looks exactly what you wish Morandi looked like. Sorry McNally, but it's true. Go for a business lunch...or dinner before catching a train from Penn. But, be careful, "La Doci Vita" could take over and you might find yourself being less than professional and riding home on the back on a Vespa instead.
